Writer Guidelines:

- Articles should be 500-800 words in length
- Articles should include a clear headline around 8 words in length
- Include subheadings within your article to assist readers
- For pieces containing advice, consider a numbered list (Top 10...,5 Things to Know..., etc.)
- Articles should be to the point, but may include color via anecdotes.
- Facts must be supported via embedded links
- We recommend having a second set of eyes review your work before submission to ensure clarity.

Do I need to provide images?

No, but if you would like to include one, a link to the party you licensed the image from must be included. Alternatively, we can select an image for you.

Next steps after submission?

Realty Times editors will review your article for content. We may ask for clarification or elaboration on certain aspects. You will be notified with a link when it is live on Realty Times. We do not guarantee that articles will be indexed.

Will my article be edited?

During the review process we may lightly edit your article for style and grammar. Additionally, we reserve the right to fact check any claims and edit article headlines and other content.

What about publication rights?

Upon publication, all articles become property of Realty Times.
